Black Coffee

Director's Notes

This is an exciting time for the theatre; we became a historic Webster building a couple of years ago, we have moved to upgrade and clean the building this past year and we have a beautiful garden. This is because we have great volunteers and members! We could use more of both, so anyone interested in volunteering please call the Guild.

Now to director's notes: Agatha Christie's Black Coffee was copyrighted in 1930. It was her first play that was produced. Like her other plays, it is sophisticated and full of suspense. It is a formula that still works today.

Please sit back and enjoy a cup of coffee in Sir Claude Amory's library this evening, and watch what this great cast helps unfold.
